So noble
So powerful

Fifty Million Years

That's how long rhinos have walked the Earth. Today, only five species of rhinos exist, and we are at risk of losing some of these species within our lifetime. But we have not given up hope. We are committed to focusing the best available resources, partnerships, expertise, and scientific methods to ensure rhinos survive and thrive for generations to come.

One Killed Every 10 Hours.

Rhino are in crisis. Due to consumer demand for rhino horn, populations in Africa are barely keeping up with devastating losses from poaching. Two of the three Asian rhino species are quietly disappearing from Indonesia's dense rainforests. For all five rhino species, the highest priorities are to bolster anti-poaching activities, to maintain intensive monitoring and active management of wild populations, and to intensify international pressure on range country governments to enforce their wildlife crime laws.

The International Rhino Foundation

Since 1991, the International Rhino Foundation has worked to ensure the survival of rhinos through strategic partnerships, targeted protection, and scientifically-sound interventions. At the heart of our vision is the belief that our work will help to create a world where rhinos once again thrive in the wild.
